Henry S. Baird

by Joan Kreuser

Green Bay pioneer Henry S. Baird, 1800–1875, Wisconsin's first practicing attorney, played an important role in law in Green Bay for over half a century. He firmly believed Green Bay would become a prominent place in Wisconsin (originally a part of the Michigan territory) and never regretted his selection of Green Bay as his home.

Baird became Wisconsin's first territorial attorney general and eventually became known as the "Father of the Wisconsin Bar." According to Bob Flatley, well-known Green Bay attorney, who has researched him in depth, Baird found the law dry and irksome and never entirely lost his dislike of it. Attorney Flatley has been known to say, "A community isn't civilized until the first attorney arrives." Some people might disagree.

Baird was born in Dublin, Ireland, and immigrated to Pittsburgh at age five. By the age of 15, he had completed his education and at age 18 started the study of law at a time when there were no law schools, but rather a system in which one studied alongside a practicing attorney in his office until a judge admitted you to practice law in a court.

In 1822, Baird visited Mackinac Island, an important settlement at the time, and in 1824 he married Elizabeth Fisher (half-Indian, half-French) at Mackinac and moved to Green Bay, an area he discovered that did not have any lawyers . . . and thus no competition. Baird's parents objected to the marriage, probably because Elizabeth was only 14 years old and spoke little English.

Judge James Duane Doty and his wife were the first visitors to welcome the Bairds to their new home in the officer's quarters at Fort Smith on the east bank of the Fox River. Doty was the first judge in the area and prior to his term, post commanders at Fort Howard, on the west bank of the Fox River, ran things pretty much to suit themselves. With Doty in place, civil law replaced military law in the small settlement and surrounding area.

In 1825, Baird and his wife traveled by canoe to Mackinac Island for the birth of their first child. In route the party stopped in a harbor in what is now Door County and went ashore where the egg throwing tomfoolery that had started in the boats continued on land. After leaving the following morning, members of the group christened the area Egg Harbor, a name that remains to this day. Elizabeth Baird returned to Green Bay when her daughter was six weeks old.

On June 30, 1830, a Menominee Indian named Okewa shot a fellow Indian by accident; as he explained he thought he was shooting a deer. Indian tradition of the day said that by taking a man's life, you forfeited your own. Okewa reported the incident to Chief Oshkosh and two other members of his tribe drew knives and killed Okewa on the spot.

The trial of Chief Oshkosh, one of the most famous in Wisconsin history, pitted white man's law against Indian tradition. Henry S. Baird was the prosecutor. After hearing arguments from Baird against Chief Oshkosh, Judge Doty, after serious deliberation, acquitted the Chief on the grounds that American laws did not apply to Indians, who were not citizens in any event. Whereas Chief Oshkosh won, it is likely that the case, as well as a few other incidents, cost Doty his judgeship as he was defeated when he next came up for re-election.

In May of 1835, the Baird family moved to Navarino, a newer community located in what is now downtown Green Bay. In 1836, Baird was appointed Secretary to Governor Henry Dodge to deal with the important treaty of Cedar Point. Also in 1836, he was elected to the first Territorial Legislature of the Wisconsin Territory. In December 1838, Dodge appointed him Attorney General of the Territory. In 1846, he served as a delegate to the first Wisconsin Constitutional Convention. In 1853, Baird was the Whig candidate for governor. In 1861 and 1862, he served as Mayor of Green Bay and was also elected Chairman of the County Board, and was for many years president of the Brown County Bar Association. These are some of the many positions the popular and convivial Irishman Baird held during his long and illustrious legal and political career in Wisconsin.

In retirement, Baird chaired the relief campaign for victims of the 1871 Peshtigo Fire.

Henry S. Baird died in 1875 at 75 years of age. His wife Elizabeth survived him by 15 years dying in 1890 at age 80. The Bairds along with two of their daughters and two grandchildren are buried at Woodlawn Cemetery in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Milwaukee President's Message

We are finally beginning to hope for milder days and more outdoor time, hooray for April, and knowing as Wisconsinites we can see every kind of weather nature has this month. All the gardeners will be planning the garden or starting seeds and waiting to get out and get their hands dirty. Welcome to Spring!

It is the wish of the Shamrock Club Board that our activities in March were pleasing to all. From the SCCGPD concert at our March meeting, to the formal introduction of our honorees, to the informational talk by UWM's John Gleeson. That month was the 49th anniversary of this special club, and we wanted to make it special. The events each day leading up to the parade at the Grand Avenue Mall were created by Westowne Association, and the TV commercials shown on Channel 12 were sponsored by Mo's Pub. If you looked at the commercials carefully, you could spot some of our members making their acting debut.

If you were able to attend the mass at St. Patrick's Church, we enjoyed welcoming Bishop Callahan for the first time and were happy he could be our celebrant. The choir was again under the direction of Bob Harrold and the singing of the choir was a joy to hear. Paula Harrold had stepped in to chair the event and Chuck McLaughlin came forward to tend to all the details that are so important to the mass. Thanks to all of you for all the work this involved and for your dedication each year in the true spirit of love of heritage. After the mass we went back to the ICHC for a breakfast under the direction of Lorraine Neuberg and her volunteers. Well done Lorraine for this and the food for the day.

This all leads up to the marvelous parade under the direction of Mike O'Leary and his many volunteers. Kris Pluskota was the person responsible in all the contacts and mailing to the participants, and this of course makes Mike's job much easier. Kris was also down on Wisconsin Avenue helping in the parade assemblage. Mike Boyle was on the reviewing stand, and helped with the lineup in advance. Mike has been an integral part of this parade for years, and we thank him. John and Mary Fisher were the skilled judging crew, and their integrity each year is a great addition. John finished this task and then proceeded to the ICHC post parade party.

The post parade party presented the community with the finest entertainment in the state for the day. This is the first time we tried free admission and in a year people are stretched financially, we hope it was well received. Barry Stapleton engaged all the entertainment, and it was well received. Thanks to Al Moss Jr. for boldly stepping up to serve as the chair, and all the hurlers for helping, and to Marianne Fisher for her help while others were at the parade site. Linda Tuescher and Noreen Barclay for the retail area work. Good job each and every one of you.

You must be present at our annual Easter Rising Mass at the Irish Cultural and Heritage Center. It will commence at 9:30 a.m. this year, and Father Terry Brennan has graciously agreed to be our liturgist for this occasion. The mass is chaired once again by Betty Mikush, and Veronica Cezynski will take care of the breakfast that follows in the parlor. If you're attending for the first time, we will precede the mass with a reading describing the events in Dublin on Easter Sunday, and how it changed the course of history for the Irish people. It's wonderful to see all the families in attendance each year, and to see the new babies that have been added. Please bring the children, and Easter bonnets are encouraged. We do a collection at this mass, and the money is donated. I can't be specific on this as the board will decide at the next board meeting. Kit and Josie Nash would be pleased to see this tradition has continued to this day.

I'm still watching for you to attend, see you at the meeting.

– Julie Smith, President

South Central Shamrock Club April News

Spring is here for us in Wisconsin. The gardens are in full bloom in one of the most spectacular gardens in Ireland. Thought I would share with you a destination to visit if you are the lucky winner at our St. Patrick's Day Celebration on March 21. We go to press before our raffle winner is announced, so enjoy this about Brigit's

Garden in Roscahill, Co. Galway.

Brigit's Garden takes you on a magical journey through the sacred spiral of the seasons into the heart of Celtic heritage and mythology, making it one of the truly outstanding attractions in Galway.

Themed on the Celtic seasonal festivals, the Garden is regarded as one of the most spectacular gardens in Ireland, set within 11 acres of woodlands and wildflower meadows. A walk through the gardens is a journey through the cycle of the year, each garden representing one of the Celtic festivals: Samhain, Imbolc, Bealtaine and Lughnasa. This seasonal cycle mirrors the cycle of life from conception to old age and death. These are wildlife gardens, designed to reflect the West of Ireland landscape.

WINTER GARDEN. The festival of Samhain falls on October 31, and marks the beginning of the yearly cycle for Celtic peoples. This is a time of death and the promise of re-birth, a time of waiting and reflection. It is understood that in the dark silence comes new beginnings. In the Samhain garden, the earth, in the shape of a sleeping woman, wraps around a womb-like pool enclosed in a ring of birch trees, reflecting the stark simplicity of the season. This is a place to be still, dream and prepare for the movement of spring.

SPRING GARDEN. Imbolc is the old Celtic name for the spring festival on February 1st, now St Brigit's Day. In the Imbolc garden the path leads through hay meadow and an orchard to a children's glade with its delightful basketwork swings. Further on, a carved triple spiral symbolises Brigit, who is often represented as three sisters or as the three patrons of poetry, smithcraft and midwifery.

SUMMER GARDEN. The great fire festival of Bealtaine celebrates the bright half of the year and the coming of summer's warmth. This is the time for sexual awakenings, marriages and the adventures of young adulthood. Diarmuid and Grainne were mythical lovers on the run, and the Bealtaine garden features their bed, a grassy hollow facing the sun. The lovers theme is carried through to the Flame Figures sculpture. A processional way between tall stones has copper flames set into the path and leads to a fire circle, backed by a throne in bog oak and yew.

AUTUMN GARDEN. The festival of Lughnasa in August marks the beginning of the harvest and the transition from summer to autumn. Named after the Celtic god Lugh, it symbolizes a time of plenty and celebration. Stone vegetable beds in spiral shapes stand to each side and host an abundance of edible plants: vegetables, flowers and herbs. Two interlinked grassy circles are enclosed with standing stones, making spaces for feasting and dancing. Three yew trees stand outside the exit, symbolising death. The cycle is now complete. Color Guard News and Notes

Hello Race Fans;

Alas, 'tis April already and the green season has come and gone.

The band had a fantastic debut at the Shamrock Club's very own St. Patrick's day parade. With the warm weather, it was a great time to be wearin o' the Green.

Congratulations again to all of the very deserving honorees, and especially our very own. In "The Ambassador", as we like to call him, Bill Sherry embodies the very definition of what a Parade Marshal is supposed to be, and I was so proud when they read his name as the recipient. At every gig, he is always talking up the group and its members. He's the best advertising we ever had! He, along with his wife Anna, are as integral members of this family we have.

March also saw us in Chicago's South Side Irish Parade as well as New London's St. Patrick's Day parade. The season is well under way! Please check the website for new additions to April's schedule if any. Right now, you'll see the group at the lovely Easter Rising Mass on Sunday, April 12.

Asides, just a few things going on in the group. Congratulations to Hans Thompsen, who is now a playing member of the pipeline. Can't wait to see a few more faces soon amongst us. A warm welcome to up and coming piper Bob Lannin, and a welcome back to snare drummer Jim Russell who may seem familiar to you as he marched with the group approximately six seasons ago. Also a warm welcome to some of the pipers from Milwaukee Scottish Pipes and Drums who'll be joining us for some of the parades this season. Also, a big congratulations to Dominique, who has worked hard over the winter and will be moving from the color guard to the tenor drum with the other fabulous ladies.

I'll keep this one short. As you are reading this, I am in New York City for the Tartan Day Parade – 750 pipers and counting for this one. It's quite the spectacle. I'll be enjoying a wee pint or ten at the St. Andrew's society and then out to do some serious shopping.

Take a look at some of the events: [www.tartanweek.com].

Until the Merry Month of May everyone,

– Noel Tylla, 6th year piper

Shamrock Club Helps Out Again

On January 12, a Milwaukee newspaper story reported that the Milwaukee High School of the Arts needed all sorts of help in its library. Due to a lack of funding from the school board, the librarian, Karen Ruehl, stated that many needed items were unavailable for the students, such as filing cabinets, periodicals, furniture and even a coat rack.

By a happy coincidence, Jean Bills was vacating her office at the time and had several pieces of office equipment to dispose of, such as desks, cabinets, filing cabinets and, yes, a coat rack. Karen and Jean soon connected and agreed for the transfer of these pieces; on the condition that Karen arrange for transporting them to the school.

When the time arrived Karen was unable to obtain the needed help from her co-workers at the school. She decided that the gift of so many needed items for the library would have to be turned down. At that time, Jean knew that another way might be found. That same night at the Shamrock Club meeting she asked for a volunteer with a truck to do this job. Denis Donohoe raised his hand immediately and came through with the transportation job several days later, with the help of his son-in-law, Bobby McLaurin.

Jean stated "I just knew that someone would step forward at the Shamrock Club, and Denis did." Karen is overjoyed with the "new" furniture that was put to use immediately. "The students love it, and I can't thank Denis, the Shamrock Club and you enough."

The Shamrock Club's reputation for community volunteering really saved the day on this occasion.

First Friday Lectures

The Celtic Women First Friday lectures keep getting better and better. With a cup of tea, cookies and treats for all, a wide variety of Celtic topics is very entertaining, often educational and always friendly.

Greene Hall at 3347 N. Downer Ave. on UWM campus is a very Celtic-like venue and very user-friendly for parking, wheelchair ramp, etc. $7 admission keeps us afloat and your attendance keeps us going. You can pick up a copy of the schedule at any lecture.

On April 3 we will learn about the Ladies Ancient Order of Hibernians, from the president Mary Kuehn.

The original Ancient Order of Hibernians was formed as a secret society in Ireland in the 16th century to protect Catholic masses during the Penal Law days, since the Catholic religion was outlawed. It remains today as a service organization and now the Ladies are included, affectionately known as the “Ancient Ladies.” Their motto is Friendship, Unity and True Christian Charity. Hear about the Milwaukee group which keeps the tradition alive.

This '08-'09 series wraps up with talks about a Scottish Earl; and Galicia, a little-known Celtic region of Spain. Everyone is invited!

WARMING INTERLUDE

*And would you like a cup'o tea, luv?
Her hands already reaching for the kettle,
I can see you've braced the elements today,
They're from the sea, you know,
All broiled up it is.
Sit close to the peat, luv,*

*It will warm you soon.
She placed the steaming cups between us,
Apologized because there were no scones.
But then, in a reflective tone
While gesturing with flowing graciousness:
You know, our own Frank McCourt
Once said, "Are we put into this world to be busy or to chat over a nice cup of tea?"
So we sat and sipped and chatted
Watching the elements unfold thru lace curtains.*
